

INSIDE THE FLY BY NIGHT 2012

NATIONAL LEAGUE EAST

Projected Finish

Norwich Navigators

Burlington Buckaneers

Wall Street Barons

Allyn Street 89ERS

US Jarheads

Arsenal Gunners

This division is a tough one to call. Should be a tough battle.

Arsenal is still rebuilding and will battle the Jarheads to stay out of the basement. You have to like the starting point of Stanton, Kennedy and Pineda....still need some more pieces.

The Jarheads are still in a circling pattern....but had a nice draft with Trout and Goldschmidt. I like Hudson in the rotation. Still some work to do before battling for a playoff spot.

The 89ERS appear to be down a bit this year. The injury to Josh Johnson is a big one. They still have Doc and Cain at the top of the rotation, but the lineup vs. RHP is weak this year.

Wall Street has one of the best lineups in the league and a solid bullpen. However, I don't think the starting rotation is good enough.

I'm going with Burlington and Norwich to finish one-two this year. Norwich's rebuilding process is paying off with an excellent Rotation led by Kirshaw, Zimmerman and Cueto. Solid pen and ok lineup.

Burlington also has a solid rotation led by Sheilds, Latos and Vasquez, and good bullpen and a decent lineup.

The National League should be very interesting this year. Even the also rans have some good players. No real juggernauts. Good luck to all!

Last but not least is the AL West....coming up soon.
