AMERICAN LEAGUE

Projected Finish

Milford
Louisville
New Hampshire
California
Lake Wobegon
Hotlanta
Alpharetta
Arsenal
York Town
Urpaign
Baton Rouge
Atlanta

Overview:

Milford is clearly the best team and unless managed poorly will run away with the AL title again. The only question to be answered during the regular season is how Glen will manage once again to get at least two picks in the top ten in the upcoming draft without giving up anything more than the 24th pick in the draft and a guy who would be sitting on his bench during 2021.

Louisville, New Hampshire and California will battle it out for also ran status while Lake Wobegon is my pick to round out the top five.

Tony has done a real nice job building a deep and talented squad. The River Bandits are built well to withstand the 162 game schedule. The Hogs on the other hand are built better for the playoffs with the very good 1-3 rotation. However, the lack of starting pitching depth will likely cost them some games during the regular season.

California is good but doesn't quite have the HR pop that the other three teams have; and their pitchers give up some long balls as well.

The Whippets will score a lot of runs but after Strasburg, Hendricks and Hendriks the pitching is scarce. Should be enough to get them into the tourney.

Hotlanta has some hitting but the pitching is bad. Alpharetta also has some hitting....most teams do, but the pitching is also subpar.

Arsenal, Yorktown, Baton Rouge, Urpaign and Atlanta are just not very good.....mostly because they don't have much pitching. This year it's all about the pitching....or lack thereof.

I'd be shocked if any of my top four don't make the playoffs. Lake Wobegon should, but could be challenged by Hotlanta or Alpharetta. The rest of the teams should hold onto their first round picks and beware of Dogfish bearing false idols.
