INTRODUCING: FoggyMountain Angels

The New England Angels franchise has officially relocated to West Palm Beach Florida. Yes, we have played our last game at Halo Park. A new ballpark is under construction in Wellington Florida, and should be completed in time for the beginning of the 2021 season. Spring training for the 2021 season will be held at Ballpark of the Palm Beaches, a facility we will be sharing with the Washington Nationals until our new ballpark in Wellington is completed. The New England franchise will now be known as the FoggyMountain Angels. Our minor league affiliate will be the West Palm Blue Headds. Blue Headds home games will be played at Ball Park of the Palm Beaches, the same site where the Angels will conduct their spring training workouts in 2021. The Angels new stadium in Wellington Florida is nearing completion and will be ready for the start of the 2021 season.

Rumor is that Angel management will be cleaning house as they prepare to begin play for the 2021 season. The Angels have two picks each in rounds 1, 2 and 3, three 4th round picks, a 5th rounder and 2 picks in the 6 round for a total of 12 picks in the 1st 6 rounds, So 12 roster spots need to be cleared before the 2021 draft. Once the playoffs have concluded we will be trolling through the FBN menu of rosters looking for trade opportunities. Check out our roster, and if you have any idea's shoot us an email.

Looking forward to 2021 from the land of Sunshine and Covid 19

Thanks to Bob and Congratulations on a great season with 107 Wins.

We knew after his draft that the Bucs would be a force all year, and Bob definitely delivered.

Things kind of went south for the Bucs in the first game when Castillo went down with an injury after one inning. That made his BP management a lot more difficult in the series.
